

Mentoring Children of Incarcerated Parents (A Partner of the Washington Service Corps)

The Mentoring Children of Incarcerated Parents (MCIP) project utilizes members to develop and implement mentoring programs for children with an absent parent in jail or prison. The mission is to place members with supporting organizations to create systems and processes to locate and identify affected children, create systems to recruit mentors, identify and/or develop mentor training materials, develop systems and policies to match mentors and mentees, create materials to market the program and create systems to track and evaluate the project including performance measures.
